The love feast between the two houses of the state legislature continues.

The price of coffee has been advancing for several months owing, it was asserted to the prospects for a poor crop. Now the existence of an alleged coffee trust has been called to the attention of the department of justice and it is claimed that this is the reason for the advance of 4 cents on the Brazilian product.

The business men of Vinita are making a lamentable mistake in their general failure to attend the weekly meetings of the Commercial Club. The club represents, or ought to represent the business interests of Vinita and deserves the attention of every man who would do his part toward the general advancement of the city. The town, like the individual that ceases to be active and alert to everything that promises advancement soon lags into an apathy that is fatal to further development. To gather in the Commercial Club rooms once a week and discuss matters of importance to the city ought to be profitable and should bring results.

There died in Oklahoma one day this week a woman whose life reached back into a time, the turbulence of which the present generation can have little conception. The mother of the James boys, Frank and Jesse, who for two decades were hunted like wild animals all over the country from Kentucky to California, Mrs. Zerelda Samuels, the mother of these boys was a remarkable character, and mother-like never lost faith and hope in her bandit sons. Once in a fight with officers in which the boys were engaged at the old home near Liberty, Missouri, the old woman lost an arm, shot away by a bullet intended for one of the boys. After a stormy life reaching toward the century mark the old woman is at peace and was buried beside Jesse in the old family burying ground at Liberty, Missouri. The mother's love, dominant to the last was the ruling characteristic of her stormy life.

When "knocks" on big corporations for their heartlessness are so common, it is a relief and only everyday fairness to take special notice of the genuine human generosity of the Diamond Match company, which at President Taft's solicitation has just surrendered its patent on the harmless form of phosphorus for match manufacture. The pending bill in congress that will prohibit the use in match factories of the kind of phosphorus which causes necrosis of the jaws is a measure that by every consideration of humanity ought to be promptly enacted. But if it had been passed with this patent still in force, only the Diamond Match company, or its licensees, would have been able to make any matches at all, and all the lesser match concerns would have been put out of business. The president's request was of course a strong influence, but there was no way of compelling the trust to give up its monopoly and let its smaller competitors live. So its action was voluntary and in one clear item to the credit of real unselfishness in business.

RATTLESNAKE KILLED BY COUNTY SURVEYOR THURSDAY

The novel experience of killing a rattlesnake in February fell to the lot of County Surveyor George Ashby, yesterday afternoon. The snake was found in the bottom of an old well on the George Hanford farm about twelve miles northwest of Vinita. It was about three feet in length. The spring like weather had probably induced the rattle to break his winter's hibernation and sally forth in search of food and to meet his end.

A Day of Big Things.

In addition to being the biggest livestock show ever held in the south, the National Feeders and Breeders' Show at Fort Worth, March 13 to 18, promises to have an exhibition of noted men on hand. Ex-President Roosevelt is, of course, easily the most conspicuous man in America, and he will be the center of attraction on the 14th of March. Governors of five or six states have accepted invitations to add their presence to the galaxy of great men, and the Texas legislature will adjourn to allow the members to attend. In addition to these attractions, the visiting newspaper men are to be entertained by a unique barbecue which will have a feature somewhat after the style of the Gridiron Club of national fame. Taken all around, the show is going to pull off a notable event that will be well worth going to see.

Guthrie, Okla., Feb. 17.—Attorney General West in an opinion Wednesday to Governor Lee Cruce holds that one legislative measure may contain the appropriations for charitable and penal institutions and public buildings, and also that a single bill may contain appropriations for a state building, its equipment and other articles to be used in its maintenance.

He has also told the governor that women are eligible to appointment, as he might desire, as regents for the state university, the normal school and deaf and dumb school, but that they cannot serve as trustees of the state Confederate home, because the law says such trustees, so far as practicable, shall have served in the army or navy of the Confederate states.

In a letter to Governor Cruce, the attorney general holds that the state's public building warrants should be sold only at par, and the good faith of the state pledged for their payment. He expresses the opinion that a mistake was made when the law regarding the warrants was worded so that the state is not liable for them.

He holds also that the warrants should have been sold at par instead of given to contractors in payment for work, as was done last year.

Data has been compiled in the attorney general's office showing the work of that department for the past year: Four bond issues were approved; 352 were approved, amounting in value to $6,931,080; seventy-three opinions were given to the governor; 187 to other state officers, and 3,785 to county officers.
